Good morning Ms. El-Bey,

I hope that you have been doing well and staying safe and healthy. I'm writing to update you on the investigation of the encounter you had with two MTA police officers at Penn Station in January 2020. We were able to review surveillance video and speak to a number of witnesses, and bring the officers in for questioning as well. Unfortunately, we simply could not find enough evidence to establish beyond a reasonable doubt -- the standard we are required to meet in a criminal case -- that either of the officers committed a crime. One obstacle in particular was that several of the surveillance cameras at Penn Station were not working that night, including the camera in the elevator where the incident took place. We also were unable to find any eyewitnesses to the incident itself.

I do want to let you know that both officers are still going to face disciplinary charges because of the work that Lieutenant Hosein with the MTA's Internal Affairs Bureau did in investigating your case. The fact that we can't go forward with criminal charges is not going to change that.

If you have any questions about the outcome of our investigation, please do not hesitate to reach out. You can either email me at this email address, or contact me at 212 335 9099.

Best regards,

Good afternoon Ms. El-Bey,

I'm sorry that you are having issues filing your claims against the MTA. But again, unfortunately we can't help you with your lawsuit. Our office is only working on the criminal investigation related to your case, which is totally separate from your lawsuit. Also, as I mentioned before, the laws about grand jury investigations being confidential means we are not allowed to share information about your case with anyone while the case is ongoing, except people like Lieutenant Hosein who are helping us with the investigation.

I know you are understandably very concerned about being reimbursed for all the property that was lost, so I sent your email to our Witness Aid Services Unit. They have a lot more information on things the government can do to help reimburse the victims of crime that don't depend on you filing a lawsuit. They also have a list of pro bono agencies that you may be able to talk to about your claim against the MTA even though our office can't help you with the lawsuit. Someone from the Witness Aid Services Unit will send you an email over the next few days to talk to you about your case and what options you might have.

Best,

Good morning Ms. El-Bey,

Investigator Johnson told me that you were asking for the case number for our investigation. Unfortunately, that's not something we can give out. It's an internal tracking number that we're not allowed to share since it relates to a pending investigation. We've got what's called a "grand jury investigation" opened for your case, but those are by law completely secret and confidential. That means that legally we can't share information about your case with anyone, except for Lieutenant Hosein because he is helping us with the investigation. So, because we can't help you with your lawsuit, you may want to hire your own attorney to help with that.

However, there is something we might be able to help you with. In New York there is an agency called the Office of Victim Services. They have a program where you can file a claim for compensation for different things if you are a victim of a crime. There is a part of our office called the Witness Aid Services Unit, which helps victims of crimes file those claims all the time. If it's ok with you, I can give them your email and/or phone number. Then, they can reach out to you, talk to you about your options and help you file a claim with the Office of Victim Services. Let me know what contact info I can give them and I will do that right away.
